SHOCKING. On Friday last a human head much disfigured; was found about two miles from this city, on the road leading to the Neck, by a necircumstance to the manager of the farm (Primrose) on which he resided, buried it. On the Saturday and Sunday following it became generally rumoured in town that a head had been found, and several citizens desirous of astertaining the truth of the report, on the Monday morning subsequent visited the negro man, who on being questioned concerning it, immediately related the manner in which he half found it, and pointed out the spot in which he had buried it. It was taken up and brought to town, and search directly commenced for. the body from which it had been separated, but without success; the search was renewed on Tuesday, and after sometime spent in exploring the neighbouring woods, the body was discovered much decayed and mutilated, in a swamp, concealed in a brake of briars, nearly an half mile from the spot at which the head had been found. The trousers had been stripped from it, and a striped cotton shirt, swan'sdown waistcoat, and blue cloth jacket, were the only articles of apparel which remained upon it, the two latter nicely bistoned, as though no struggle had been made by the unhappy victim, to preserve a life, of which there is strong grounds for believing violence and villany have been used to deprive him. Unfortunately there were no marks found upon the clothing, or papers in the pockets which could lead to a discovery of his name, connections or residence.

FROM POINT PETRE, GUA DALOUPE.

Capt. Quereau, who prrived at this port yesterday, from Point Pe tre, Guadaloupe, informs us, that the news of Buonaparte's having reascended the throne of the French Empire had reached Point Petre by the brig Caroline from Bourdeaux, which place she left on the 29th March; and that it had occasioned a great sensation in the Island of Guadalonpe, and put an entire stop to French commerce. The news was confirmed by two arrivals at St. Pierres from Bourdeaux, which sailed three days before the Caroline,

The British were forming a settlement'at Crab Island, about twenty miles to windward of Porto Rico.

The sloop Count de Linois, had arrived at Point Petre, from Barbadoes, and reported that all neutrals are prohibited from entering the port; even coming to anchor subjects them to condemnation. A Swelish brig, and her cargo of 2000 bbls. of flour, were condemned under this new law. The American agents at Barbadoes keep a boat on the look out, to wath off the American vessels. Three had looked into the harbour, obtained the information, and sailed for other ports. The Count de Linois lest Barbadoes the first of May. This report was considered doubtful.

From Curracoa, April 14. By the arrival yesterday of a launch from Margarita, we learn that the expedition from Cadiz, arrived off that Island on the 12th inst. and a squadron of 5 vessels, on board of which Morales had embarked troops for the reduction of Margarita, appearing in sight at the same time with the the fleet from Spain, so alarmed the inhabitants, that the whole island immediately capitulat. ed to this overwhelming force. Previous, however, to the port being taken possession of, 16 vessels principally lannches, and crowded with persons of every description, made their escape, intending to make such ports as they could most speedily reach. Loss of the Ship Eliza. Ship Eliza. Daniel Stone, master, from Newbury port, bound to Now, ng of the 30t March, struck an a reef off the Blue Caicos, (Bahana Islands.) Finding the ship could not be got off, asistsace was obtained from the shore, about 6 miles distant, and the crew were proceeding to land the goods, when having landed only three boat loads the ship unexpectedly took fire from a quantity of lime which was in the hold, and before the fire could be extinguished was so much burnt as to be entirely lost. Only asmall part of the cargo, and part of the sails and rigging much injured were saved. The mate Mr. John Brown belonging to this town, was severe ly burnt, and died at Turks Island on the 20th of April.
